1. Introduction – Doing Time for God!

Letter writing remains a highly effective method of raising awareness, encouraging action and also delivering hope to those who otherwise might feel forgotten.

You also become an advocate for persecuted Christians, assuming the important ministerial role of being one who pleads for, or on behalf of another by highlighting injustice and inhumanity. Furthermore, you fulfill the Scriptural directive to show compassion and concern for your brothers and sisters in Christ.

The Lord Jesus Christ provided His Church with a clear mandate to question the unfair actions of others when He answered the officer of the high priest saying, “If what I said is wrong, bear witness about the wrong; but if what I said is right, why do you strike me?” (John 18:23)

Today many thousands of Christians are languishing in prisons in distant lands simply because they have refused to bow the knee to dictatorial governments and ideologies, insisting instead on pledging their allegiance to Christ.

Christians in Canada have a duty to “Remember those who are in prison, as though in prison with them, and those who are mistreated, since you are also in the body” (Heb. 13:3).

Pastor Richard Wurmbbrand (d. 2001), the founder of The Voice of the Martyrs, spent a total of fourteen years in prison in Communist Romania simply because he refused to deny his Saviour. While in ‘chains’ the idea of an organization that would speak up on behalf of the voiceless was born.

Speaking of our corporate responsibility as members of the Body of Christ, Pastor Wurmbbrand wrote in his book Tortured for Christ,

When I was beaten on the bottom of my feet, my tongue cried. Why did my tongue cry? It was not beaten. It cried because the tongue and the feet are both part of the same body. And you free Christians are part of the same Body of Christ that is now beaten in prisons in restricted nations, that even now gives martyrs for Christ. Can you not feel our pain?

Soon Ok Lee, once a high ranking local government official in North Korea, was imprisoned, not because she was a Christian – at that time she was not, but because of her honesty and refusal to bow to the unlawful demands of other officials. She endured unspeakable torture whilst in custody but according to the providence of God she was spared and eventually released. In her gripping book Eyes of the Tailless Animals, she writes,

At the moment the officer announced my release in front of the prisoners, the eyes of all six thousand ‘tailless animals’ stared at me. Their eyes were telling me, “When you get out of prison be a witness for us. You are not going out just to live a better life, but to tell about the real hell that exists in here.” They were begging me to tell about their faith and all that they were suffering. I can never forget the sight of those pleading eyes.

Soon Ok Lee is now a Christian and an advocate, faithful to the silent plea of six thousand souls witnessed that day. She speaks, writes, and supports, because her love and her faith compel her to.

Will you take up your pen and demonstrate in a highly practical and productive way, your love and concern towards your brothers and sisters in chains? Will you become a voice for the voiceless and ‘do time for God’?

2. Writing to government officials

Letters show officials that there are people who know and care what happens to each prisoner. Their conditions may be improved as a result. If the authorities think no one cares, the Christian may be imprisoned with dangerous criminals, abused, deprived of food, or denied rights to their mail, parcels and visits.

As a general rule of thumb, when you write to government officials,

- Be brief.
- Use the correct honorific (For a list of appropriate titles please refer to Appendix A).
- Be yourself.
- Be polite. You are representing Jesus Christ but ensure that the facts about persecution are well stated.
- Be careful in writing about politics or criticizing their government, other than human rights abuses.
- State a general concern for persecuted believers.
- State a specific concern for one or more prisoners.
 - (a) Unless asked specifically not to, whenever possible, give the full name and home town of the prisoner(s).
 - (b) Tell why you are concerned (perhaps they have been beaten).
 - (c) Tell what you would like to see done (released, given medical treatment, etc.).
- Remember to thank them in advance for their positive actions.
- Refrain from quoting Bible verses or preaching.

Please DON'T mention the name of VOMC or any other similar organization as it may be used against the prisoner

Never underestimate the power of your letter! Irrespective of location or economic situation, governments are extremely concerned about their reputation on the world stage.

VOMC believes that originality in writing is important. For this reason we do not generally endorse the use of letter templates other than in occasional cases where repetition might be beneficial (i.e. postcard campaigns, etc).

However we do understand that help in this area is often appreciated and so we have provided a few sample letters to guide you. Please refer to Appendix B.

On those occasions when The Voice of the Martyrs issues specific letter writing requests the full details of the addressee will often be provided. Links to comprehensive and regularly updated lists of government addresses can be found at www.persecution.net/links.htm.

More detailed instructions on writing letters to government officials can be found online at www.persecution.net/write.htm.

3. Writing to the media

Local and national media is an unquestionably underutilized medium for communicating news of the Suffering Church. Writing short yet concise letters to newspapers is a highly effective way of raising awareness of current issues in the global church.

What to write

- Keep your letter friendly – remember you are Christ’s ambassador.
- Keep your letter short – concise letters which make a single point are more likely to be published.
- Keep your letter clear – state your subject and purpose in the opening paragraph.
- Keep your letter relevant – editors usually print letters that are responding to recent articles in their papers or which address current issues of interest.
- Keep your letter real – Many hold to a world-view without following it to its logical conclusion and the Christian can show where certain assumptions, beliefs and trends will lead.

What not to write

- Avoid being confrontational, abusive or offensive – such conduct falls far short of our directive to be ‘salt and light’ as Christians.
- Avoid Scripture quotes – a wise and well balanced Biblical perspective which serves to address a crisis, problem or other evil can be conveyed without peppering a letter with Scripture.
- Avoid preaching – readers do not buy newspapers to read a sermon!

More detailed instructions on writing letters to the media can be found online at www.persecution.net/write.htm.

4. Writing to Prisoners of Faith

Your letters can make a difference! Mail sent to Christian prisoners, and to those who are being persecuted is very important for several reasons:

- Mail indicates clearly to the authorities that we are aware of that Christian's situation — and we care! It chips away at the theory that the West is apathetic.
- Mail testifies of the love and unity found among followers of Jesus Christ throughout the world. This is especially true when letters are opened and censored. God may also choose to use them in the lives of those in authority — they too are people for whom Christ died.
- Mail is also evidence to our persecuted family that they are not forgotten. Persecutors of Christians often tell these prisoners that they are forgotten, that they are not loved, that no one knows about them. Through this isolation and loneliness the devil can prey upon their faith. When a prisoner receives a letter, whether they can read it or not, they know that someone cares.
- Mail can result in better treatment for a prisoner. The authorities are very sensitive about their image abroad. When they realize that outsiders are monitoring a prisoner's situation, conditions may be improved.
- Each card or letter that reaches a prisoner or family is a precious gift.

May I write in English?

Yes, write in English, but please watch your penmanship. Your note must be legible to be translated. Many people study English, so there will often be someone to translate your letter.

What to write

- Tell them your name and that you know about their situation.
- Always be respectful and encouraging.
- Tell them that they are not forgotten and that they are being prayed for.
- Include a verse of Scripture although you may wish to avoid including the reference.

What not to write

- NEVER criticize their government or discuss politics as this could place Christian prisoners in extreme danger.
- NEVER mention The Voice of the Martyrs or any other source of information.

Can I do anything else?

You can also send notes, postcards even bookmarks. Attractive Christian greeting cards are especially cherished. Express your Christian love and mention you are praying (then do!).

If you want to make your letter even more personal and special, you may want to include a snapshot of yourself, your family or your prayer group.

Please do not include your mailing address on correspondence. Unscrupulous individuals, claiming to be the prisoner, occasionally steal letters and solicit funds.

NEVER send money to anyone who responds to your letter. Contact us for more information.

Please do not send the letters to The Voice of the Martyrs for mailing.

More detailed instructions on writing letters to prisoners can be found online at www.persecution.net/write.htm.

5. The Prisoners List

CHINA

It has been estimated that there are more Christians in prison in China than in any other restricted nation.

SUN MINGHUA

Sun Minghua was arrested in September 2001, on suspicion of organizing and utilizing a cult organization to undermine law enforcement. At the time she was a council member in charge of finances for the South China Church (SCC). After the arrest, police searched her house and confiscated financial documents related to the church. The trial for the charges related to organizing a cult was held December of 2001, when Sun was sentenced to life in prison. At a later High Court hearing, this sentence was reduced to 12 years. Earlier in 1996, she was jailed for a year by the Jinmen Public Security Bureau for evangelizing activities. In April 2001, the SCC was designated a "cult" by the ministry of Public Security.

ZHANG RONGLIANG

Pastor Zhang Rongliang was sentenced to 7 1/2 years in prison on July 4, 2004 following his arrest on December 1, 2004. Zhang already had spent 12 years in prison for his faith during five separate detentions. He experienced harsh torture, including electric shock, during his previous prison terms. He suffers from diabetes and high blood pressure in addition to other chronic health problems that have led officials to transfer him in and out of hospitals. He appeared in court April 6, 2006, more than 16 months after his arrest, for his third hearing on charges of "attaining a passport through cheating" and "illegal border crossing." At this hearing the court acknowledged there was insufficient evidence for the case and asked for legal advice from a higher court.

LI MEI

In August 2007, nine house church leaders were given "re-education through labour" sentences ranging from 12 to 18 months for being involved in an "evil cult organization" after they were found worshipping together in Hubei province. In January, seven of these leaders were unconditionally released. Li Mei (42) is one of two female leaders still detained. Mei served part of her one-year sentence in a hospital with both hands chained to her bed. She is currently serving the remainder of her sentence at home under house arrest.

ALIMUJIANG YIMITI

In January 2008, Alimujiang Yimiti, a Muslim convert to Christianity, was arrested and accused of "subversion of the national government and endangering national security," a crime punishable by death. On May 27 2008, Alimujiang's case went to trial but it was then referred back to the Chinese Public Security Bureau's prosecutors due to "insufficient evidence." On October 27, 2009, Alimujiang was handed a 15-year prison sentence for "providing state secrets to overseas organizations."

ERITREA

Nearly 2000 Eritrean Christians are now believed to be under arrest because of their religious beliefs, held in police stations, military camps and prisons in various locations across Eritrea. Jailed Evangelical Christians are routinely subjected to physical beatings and severe psychological pressure to deny their religious beliefs.

HAILE NAIZGI

At the time of his imprisonment on May 23, 2004, Reverend Haile Naizgi was serving God as the chairman of the board of the Full-Gospel Church of Eritrea, the largest Pentecostal church denomination in the nation. Previously, he was a senior accountant with World Vision in Eritrea. Reverend Haile Naizgi, who is married with two children, was one the key organizers of the church's activities in Eritrea.

MARYAM JALILI

Maryam Jalili and two others, Mitra Zahmati and Farzan Matin, are imprisoned in Iran following their arrest while gathered at a house church to celebrate Christmas. On December 24, 2009, Maryam, Mitra, and Farzan were among 12 Christians arrested by security forces in Pakdasht, Iran. After a week without information, family members contacted authorities and demanded to know where they were being held. Officials told the families that the Christians would be released the same day, but instead they were secretly transferred to the notorious Evin prison in Tehran. Twelve of the believers were released on January 4, 2010. Security officials have also raided the imprisoned Christians' homes and confiscated their books, computers, phone directories, CDs, DVDs and Christian literature.

YOU are 'DOING TIME FOR GOD' by taking time to write and minister to those who need help and encouragement,
whilst they are 'DOING TIME FOR GOD' in prison for their faith in Christ!

While every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of the information presented here, VOMC is not accountable for errors made in its compilation. The actual number of Christians in prison is usually higher than we can list. News of arrests and releases can take weeks, if not months, to reach the West and must be verified. There are many prisoners whose names we do not know but of whom we hear about indirectly or in general reports. Remember to pray for them too.
